TENSION IS NOW UNANIMOUS

German, Russian and Anglo-American military opinion are now in apparent agreement on imminent invasion of Europe. Behind the spokesmen who have contributed publicly to the impression is the expectation of momentous events this month by millions of ordinary citizens in Europe, Great Britain and the United States. Tension is now unanimous.

It has been made so by official statements, reports of military action, intensification of aerial attacks on Europe from Britain and widespread realization of the approach of one of those psychological moments in the making of history when everything seems to point in the same direction.

While the great climax of the war to subdue Germany and confine it within its borders may not be reached until 1944, there is now in existence a strong conviction that the event leading up to the climax is due—something that will transcend in importance everything that has preceded it.

This conviction and the tension it is producing could be accidental, but if so there would need to be some explanation for all the things that have produced it. Certainly the commander of United States forces in the European theater, Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, does not announce, as he did last Sunday in London, that the main assault against Germany is going to be launched unless he means it.

FASTER, FASTER, FASTER

Only the Germans in Russia know how bad their military situation there has become, and they aren't going to tell. Plainly, however, something like Napoleon's retreat from Moscow is occurring in the Ukraine—a similarity that may become more marked as the German retreat develops in scope and tempo.

The evacuation of Kiev and Fastov leaves the Germans without a single important strong point between them and their line of retreat into Bessarabia and southern Poland. To all intents and purposes their front in the Ukraine, which was to have been stabilized on the Dnieper river, is shattered.

The consequences will be not alone in matters of tactics and logistics, vitally important as they are, but in the attitude of the German troops who must fall back day after day, always a little faster, always a little more disorganized, always a little more fearful of the consequences of the historic failure they made in the attempt to conquer Russia.

Their faith in leadership is gone. Their own confidence is disintegrating. Even if they know nothing about history, instinct prompts them to recognize the elements of disaster which surround them. An enemy they despised has beaten them at their own game. They are the victims of their own arrogance, as surely as were the followers of Napoleon.

KEEPSAKES

There seems to be disagreement within OPA over keeping our old ration books after the valid coupons are used up, but this is one thing the government can't influence.

Many of us will keep the dog-eared, thumb-marked, precious old relics on a straight memento basis, resisting all recommendations to the contrary. They will have, in the course of time, the same value in their field as old cartridge casings and war relics, no doubt.

In the years to come they will be entitled to a place in the drawer where the baby pictures and curls of hair are also preserved and will be brought out on reminiscent occasions in much the same way. "This was the book Junior had when he was only three years old. Junior hates to have this told on him, but this is the book he tried to chew up one day. See those teeth marks. He blamed it on the puppy, but it was Junior all right."

And as the old keepsakes are handled reverently, there will be a flood of memories about little incidents at the grocer's, the butcher's and the ration boards. "Perhaps someone may sigh, 'Ah yes, those were the good old days.' Who knows? Only the other day someone noticed the price of foodstuffs 10 years ago, when Americans thought they were having trouble, sighed and murmured, 'Maybe those were the good old days—who knows?'"

REBOUND

Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, who has been making news in a quiet sort of way since he was brought into the government last summer, now seems to be getting the rebound.

In the railroad wage case his ruling has been greeted with a chorus of dissent, rising to a crescendo with the threat of a congressional investigation.

His ruling in the miners' wage case helped produce the impasse that led to seizure of the mines and the ingenious arrangement giving the miners what they wanted despite the spirit of wage stabilization.

It was well known that Mr. Vinson volunteered to sit on one of the most ticklish spots in government, but events indicate it may be even more hazardous than he realized.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, November 11

THE LUNAR and mutual aspects of this day show some promise of moderate success, possibly in a new, unusual or novel direction, providing a peculiar, strange, illusive and intriguing state of affairs can be sidestepped or definitely vanquished. It will take much shrewdness, sagacity and digging beneath the surface to find the menacing, subtle, even sinister undercurrents. This situation may pervade all the affairs and undertakings, but particularly undermines the intimate relations, romantic and social. This can best be averted by safe and sane behavior, and not descending to the unorthodox or illicit.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, while given opportunity for making fair success in some rare or unique channel, innovation, yet may find themselves engulfed in a perplexing, baffling and strange set of circumstances, difficult to cope with, since the sources of mischief are deep laid and subtle. The best way to avoid entrapment in such illicit and illusive entanglement is to shun all manner of intrigues, snares, and schemes, and adhere rigidly to conventional, regular and open and above board conduct. This sinister menace may imperil the social or affectional relations. Keep emotions controlled.

A child may have a modicum of originality and creative ability, yet may be swayed by peculiar emotional or mental complex. Early vigilance is advised.

When the government takes sides, it destroys the foundations of justice. When the government enters the economic arena as a competitor of its citizens, it inevitably destroys their freedom of opportunity.—Frederick C. Crawford, president National Association of Manufacturers.

What we may expect from the Moscow conference is that it may lead to a basis on which the peace of the world can be maintained and justice done to those countries which form the United Nations.—Leslie Hore-Belisha, former British secretary of state for war.

Hitler's conferences were monologues. Hitler would take one deep breath and then keep going for a three-hour steady harangue.—Marshal Pietro Badoglio of Italy.

The Anglo-Soviet-American coalition is already being felt as a liberative and creative force in the world of the future.—Izvestia, Moscow government organ.

Never has a military alliance produced peace. But many of them have produced war.—Herbert Hoover.

The enemy high command must be worrying tonight—I would. We have laid to our own satisfaction the myth of Japanese invincibility.—Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr., on Bougainville attack.

Having had a chance to talk to soldiers, I can say that with national income running at upward of 150 billion, now is the time to pay for the war. We ought to pay at least 50 per cent of it now. They (soldiers) are worried that they'll have to fight the war and pay for it, too.—Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr.

We cannot expect all other peoples to have the same points of view, just as we do not expect them to impose their ways upon us. The all-important thing is the will to cooperate, to understand each other and work together.—Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Germ Warfare Impractical Now

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
A CHRONIC pessimist was expressing himself the other day about the future of civilian and the war in particular, and he advanced

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The idea that as a last resort Hitler would release germ warfare. Let me quiet any apprehensions that may exist about this on the authority of Colonel Leon A. Fox, of the Medical Corps of the United States Army.

There are three ways that germs can be spread so as to infect an opposing army. One is by infecting water supplies and food supplies. One is by dropping them from airplanes onto the ground. And one is by infecting animals, such as rats, and loosing them in enemy territory.

Not Practical

None, however, is practical. We have a sanitary corps and the water furnished troops is boiled or treated, the food is treated before it is used. Even if this didn't happen, the most likely germs that could be used to infect water supplies and food are typhoid fever and dysentery, and our troops are immunized against them. And if you members of the civilian population who are afraid of bacterial warfare have not also been immunized at least against typhoid, I advise you to go and do so at once.

Air-borne infection has several difficulties. First, and most important, is that the wind might shift and bring the germs that are intended for the enemy back on those who released them. Second, the most likely germs to use are first, influenza, and we are not sure we know what that germ is, and second, pneumonia, and the air is so full of pneumonia germs anyway that we couldn't put many more in. Besides we can cure pneumonia almost 100 per cent with the sulfa drugs.

Bubonic Plague

The idea of releasing an army of infected rodents is not so terribly impossible. The disease that would be most feasible to infect those with would be bubonic plague. But, again, it is a little difficult to predict which way the rats would run. The chances are that they would infect the rest of the rat population before they endangered the human population. And again, there is our sanitary corps who in the presence of such an event would get busy and eliminate the rat population.

Epidemics have done great damage and had great influence on wars before this. Thucydides ascribes the termination of the Peloponnesian war to the plague of Athens. Typhoid fever nearly broke up our Spanish war. Dysentery nearly disrupted the Union forces in the Civil war.

But all this was before the days of modern sanitation and the modern science of bacteriology. The possibilities that such a weapon could be brought into play now is so remote that we can with all cheerfulness dismiss it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. S.: Is it possible to determine without the X-ray whether the thymus gland is enlarged in a very young baby?

Answer: In my experience the X-ray is the only reliable method of outlining the thymus gland.

M. H.: Is it possible that there could be anything physically wrong with a person who is always sleeping?

Answer: Lack of thyroid secretion will do this. Also some other endocrine disturbances. Remember the fat boy in "Pickwick Papers."

T. R.: What is your opinion in regards to a person with asthma sleeping in a room opening on the outside provided they have plenty of warm blankets during autumn weather?

Answer: If the asthma is due to ragweed pollen of the autumn type it is better to keep the room closed. Otherwise fresh air is good for the asthmatic.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—State Secretary Hull is due back from Moscow today with a pact in his portfolio and a diplomatic feather in his cap.
In Washington, the job done by the graying 72-year-old cabinet member at the tripartite conference is regarded as one of his greatest successes in the diplomatic field. He returns with general accord practically assured among the Allies on plans for the war and the post-war period. And with only scant details of the agreement having been disclosed, he will report immediately to President Roosevelt.
It is generally believed that Hull will relate what plans were made for the swinging of the big axe on Germany and Japan and what dates were set for each new blow of the avenging blade.

FRANCO EXPLAINS
And diplomatic observers were giving attention to another development of international relations—the assertion by General Francisco Franco that his Spanish government had not recognized the Japanese puppet government in the Philippines. It was a cablegram of courtesy, says Franco of his message to the president of the Manila regime upon his installation. In the United States the Franco explanation was viewed as a Spanish bid for American sympathy.

ASK VINSON VIEWS
Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) predicts that unless Economic Stabilization Director Vinson is able to put up some strong arguments, the senate will override Vinson's rejection of an eight-cent-an-hour wage boost for the non-operating railroad brotherhoods. The prediction is made as a walk-out of 1,100,000 railroad workers threatens.

WHO'S BUYING?
A new row is developing in the coal industry over the question of who—if anyone—shall pay the miners the $40 per man lump sum as retroactive pay for underground travel under the agreement between Interior Secretary Ickes and UMW Chief John L. Lewis. The operators say they are not required to foot the bill, the government hasn't made up its mind and the miners don't expect to pass it up.

RENEGOTIATION FOR ECONOMY
The house ways and means committee turns to renegotiation of war contracts to provide additional war revenues as it heads into the home stretch on the new tax bill. As it stands now, approximately $2,250,000,000 is carried in the measure, about one-fifth of what the Treasury originally asked for. The committee has consistently urged federal economies as a means of making monies available and is now considering plans for making war contracts less expensive.

Greenford Juniors Stage Play Friday

Phyllis Eyrich and Jerold Smith serve as ushers. Others serving on various committees include: Properties, Corinne Calvin; curtain, Wilbur Kurtz; lights, John Knopp; prompter, Mr. Cobbs; business manager, Mr. Lehman; make up, Mrs. Jackson; music, Mr. Remick. There will be no school Thursday, Armistice day. The High school calendar lists the following events:

Nov. 25, second six weeks test; Nov. 25 and 26, Thanksgiving vacation; Dec. 1-2, state student tests; Dec. 24, Christmas program; Dec. 27-31, Christmas vacation; Jan. 12-13, mid-term test.

CHAPLAIN ON ATTU ADVISES COLLEAGUES

ATTU, Aleutian Islands—From his experience with troops during the capture of this island, Chaplain (Major) Edwin L. Kirtley of Albuquerque, N. M., gives this advice to his colleagues:
"Be cheerful. Be a bearer of good news. Be an example of diligence. Remember that along with the ultimate object of military victory is the idea of triumph for Christ."
He said "the chaplain should not confine himself to any one place in combat. He should have a headquarters where he can check in and should be continually searching for the many places where he is needed—the front lines, the stretcher routes and rest areas. Wherever men are, there the chaplain should be."

JIM WHITE, IRISH TACKLE, LEADING LINEMAN OF WEEK

Jack Martin, Navy Center. Rated As Second Outstanding Lineman

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The outstanding lineman of the week was Tackle Jim White of Notre Dame.

White's stealing the ball from the arms of Army's Glenn Davis was the turning point in the Irish-Cadet classic before 76,000 at Yankee stadium. The theft on the Army eight-yard line in the third period set up Notre Dame's second touchdown in a 26-0 triumph.

Navy's center, Jack Martin, was the second outstanding lineman. His inspirational play at Franklin field in Philadelphia spurred the Middies to a 24-7 victory over Pennsylvania.

Army's center, Casimir Myslinski, earned high praise from Frank Leahy, Notre Dame coach, for the manner in which he spilled several Irish plays. Another center, Bill Gray of Southern California, was best of the Pacific coast. In the southwest, Monte Moncrief, 195-pound tackle of the undefeated but tied Texas Aggies, didn't yield a yard against Southern Methodist.

Because of the fine reports his scouts gave him on Penn State's guard, Johnny Jaffurs, Coach Carl Snavely of Cornell decided to "tear everything away from him, but that didn't seem to bother Johnny much because he got mixed up in most of our running plays and prevented us from scoring the one or two times our ground game clicked."

Ensign Vincent Banonis, former Detroit university center now snapperback on the unbeaten Iowa Sea-hawks, was the rumbler of Marquette. His coach, Don Kaut, said: "Marquette couldn't do a thing to our line as long as Banonis was in there. He played a great defensive game and didn't make a bad pass from center all day even though the ball was wet and slippery."

WILDCATS ANXIOUS TO UPSET LEAHY'S NOTRE DAME BOYS

Irish Are Overwhelming Favorites For North-western Clash

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—We haven't heard Lynn Waldorf predicting victory, but you can bet your bottom War bond that his Northwestern Wildcats are just aching to upset Notre Dame Saturday at Dyché stadium.

The players aren't making any predictions either. They realize the Irish, rated universally as the nation's top team and by some as the greatest Notre Dame eleven in history, are overwhelming favorites. The Wildcats remember the old football maxim that the bigger they are the harder they fall.

If you could sneak into the Purple dressing room this week you might hear Waldorf expounding that idea, emphasizing that a football team, no matter how good, can't win a tough game on its "previous record." Notes from other midwest camps: Coach Ray Elliot of Illinois sent his team through a brisk offensive drill in preparation for Ohio State. Guard Pete Kearney and Tackle Bill Heiberg returned to the squad after recovering from injuries. At Columbus the Buckeyes dwell on offensive plays.

Four regulars, Halfback Elroy Hirsch, Center Fred Negus, Guard George Kraeger and End Rudy Smeja, missed, Michigan's scrimmage because of injuries as the Wolverines prepared for Wisconsin. The Badgers, intact for the first time in weeks, emphasized offensive tactics.

Injuries were expected to keep Indiana's Hob Hoernschemeyer and J. C. Coffey out of action much of the Great Lakes game and Coach Bo McMillin groomed George Orfanos and Jack Smith for their jobs.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The wave of Notre Dame enthusiasm that has been sweeping New York apparently hasn't engulfed the professional footballers.

We asked Buff Donelli, assistant coach of the one-victory Dodgers, whether he'd trade his club even up for the Irish and the answer was first dead silence, then a mumbled remark that they haven't had any real opposition.

The idea, in spite of Rip Miller's claim that this is the best Irish team of all, was that Buff wouldn't mind having some of the players, but he wouldn't want his job to depend on what the whole squad would do against such outfits as the Bears, Packers or Steagles.

Incidentally, there's a pretty well founded report kicking around that Notre Dame authorities, who still are opposed to post-season games, may have to yield to pressure for a War bond game on the west coast.

Kitty Sinkwich, flat-footed Frank's sister who did a neat job of hurling on a Youngstown, O., war plant softball team before joining the WACS, tells friends: Football bores me and always has, but softball—there's a game.

Columbia's Lou Little is out of the hospital after a sinus operation, but probably won't be able to do much, if any, coaching before the season ends.

Red Rolfe, baseball and basketball coach at Yale, has been devoting his spare time this fall to tutoring the Trumbull House intramural grid team.

SLICK CHICK
Chick Werges, manager of Beau Jack who manages to keep busy by publicizing pro football and college basketball, was watching the Dodgers-Cardinals game Sunday when Brooklyn sent a flanker far out to one side.

"They're going to throw a collateral pass, watch," Chick announced, much to everyone's surprise, it was a lateral, and Chick puffed with pride.

Quakers After Seventh Win This Season At Expense Of Lisbon High School Team

When Salem tries to make it seven wins in eight starts Friday night at Reilly field against Lisbon High, nine seniors will be playing their last game for the Red and Black, in a battle that is the final encounter for both schools this year.

Coach Ben Barrett, finishing his first year as Salem mentor, has guided the Quakers through the most successful season a Salem team has had in some 10 years. Barrett has made a great improvement in Salem football and his system has been receiving praise from local fans.

The Lisbon battle will finish high school careers for four Quaker linemen and five backfield men.

Jack Smith, 160-pound left tackle, will be starting in the Quaker forward wall once more Friday and will ring down the curtain on a football record that has been studied with steady, capable performances.

Kupka Will Be Missed
Fred Cain, one of the most dependable men on the squad, will be greatly missed by Coach Barrett next season as his work at the left guard spot has been splendid all season.

Ben Kupka, a 152-pound center, will not be playing Friday night because of a broken knee that kept him out of the Liverpool clash. Kupka was excellent at the center spot all year and his absence has already weakened the Quaker line.

Tom Ryan, a replacement at right guard this year, is a senior and will probably get into the Lisbon battle a good bit. Barrett has depended on the 140-pound guard many times during the season.

Entriken's passes have brought comment from fans and players from other schools. His exhibition of long, accurate passing in the Liverpool battle was one of the best seen in this district all season.

Ray Wise, fullback accounted for 18 Quaker points and his line backing on defense was effective all season. He has been playing varsity ball for three seasons, working alternately with Dick Greene.

Greene Hard To Replace
Dick Schluster, a substitute fullback, closes his scholastic football career Friday also. Although Schluster hasn't been in every game this season he has been extremely valuable in practice workouts. Coach Barrett has lauded the plucky senior all year and rates him as invaluable in the work he has done. The 140-pound fullback has made the fourth quarter at East Liverpool.

Captain Dick Greene, not a private in the Army, thought he might close his high school days before the Lisbon game, but the three week furlough given inducted men will keep him around until Nov. 26. Greene has been the mainstay and the sparkplug of the local eleven all season. He has scored 36 points and can be counted on to push across more this week against Lisbon.

Barrett expects to find it difficult to replace the light, fast right half next season.

Luckman thus ran his seven-game record to 70 connections in 128 attempts for 1,375 yards and 16 touchdowns. Baugh, in five contests, has 67 out of 124 for 958 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Luckman's yardage through the air is greater than the total offensive gain—running and passing—of any player in the league. The Packers' Tony Canadeo, the leading ball carrier with 368 yards, has also added 669 on passes—a total gain of 1,037.

Take Luckman away from the Bears and they would have just an ordinary team," says Green Bay's Don Hutson. "We could beat the Bears, but not Luckman."

In his fifth season with the Bruins, Luckman continues to play football for the love of the game. He and his brother own a trucking concern in Brooklyn and Sid also is part owner of a cellophane manufacturing company.

Coach Lou Little of Columbia probably is the only grid critic who has never admitted that Luckman has a weakness.

"He couldn't do it for me at Columbia and he couldn't do it for the Bears—Sid just can't pass laying on his back," quips Little.

Top prize among 43 yearlings sold for Hanover farms, however, was the $4,700 which R. Horace Johnston of Charlotte, N. C., paid for Quigley Hanover, a bay filly whose sire is Dean Hanover, and dam, Alice Hanover. The first day of the three-day sales saw 98 horses disposed of for $89,425, an average of more than $820 each.

Share-Ride Backfires
CLEVELAND—Mrs. Emily Hood believes the share-the-ride plan is a fine, patriotic idea, but not when it leads to share-the-husband. Mrs. Hood recently instituted a $50,000 alienation of affections suit against a red-haired divorcee, Mrs. Ann Adkins, who she claims, stole the love of George Hood when the two joined a car pool at the Addressograph-Multigraph plant here.

Have a Coca-Cola = What's the good word?

Have a "Coke", says the returned soldier and his friendly gesture is understood in Newport or New Zealand, at home or in far-off places. Around the world Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes, has become the gesture of good will, saying "Let's be friends."

Friends Church Services Will Close Sunday Night

Special features are being arranged for the closing days of the evangelistic campaign at the First Friends church under the direction of Rev. E. Hurley Cross, assisted by the Messrs. Serrett and Marshall. The Thursday evening service is designated as "Sunday school night." Each class is urged to have a large representation in the service. RAF Planes Renew Raids On Germany

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Nov. 10.—The RAF's speedy Mosquitos kept the sirens going in western Germany last night for the sixth time in a week. They bombed objectives in that battered section of the Reich while British intruder fighters struck at two air fields in France and Belgium by moonlight.

Two fires were started at the Amiens airfield in France, and damage also was inflicted on the field at Coxyde, Belgium, the air ministry said.

The forays followed a series of daylight sweeps over France yesterday by Typhoons, Spitfires and Mustangs, during which railway lines and other targets were attacked. Four RAF planes were lost in these sweeps.

Britain meanwhile had its first raid-free night in eight nights.

Man Who Flew Prison 21 Years Ago, Is Arrested

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 10.—Because Earl Ewers, 47, of Osceola, Ind., appealed to a higher court on a drunk driving charge, he may have to go back to prison after 21 years living as a respected citizen. Appealing his case from the Mishawaka, Ind., city court to circuit court in South Bend, his fingerprints were sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. They talked with those of an Earl Ewer who fled the Mansfield, O., state reformatory May 16, 1922.

RUSSIANS

repulsed several fierce German counterattacks northeast and south of the town of Kerch, the Russian war bulletin said. A Reuters dispatch from Moscow saying that Kerch itself had been reported captured was not officially confirmed.

Reports the Germans already were leaving the Crimea were contained in dispatches from Bern to a Stockholm newspaper. The dispatches said hundreds of Black Sea coastal ships and Danube river boats had been assembled to aid the evacuation.

The Moscow bulletin said 3,800 Germans were slain yesterday—700 in the Crimea, 1,600 in the Kiev area and 1,500 in the Nevel sector on the north-central front, where Red Army forces threaten the Latvian and old Polish frontiers.

Other Moscow dispatches reported a Russian drive from a Dnieper river bridgehead to 50 miles southeast of Kiev, apparently aimed at the flank of the German forces under attack by other Russian columns operating in the vicinity of recently-captured Fastov, south-east of Kiev.

Vatutin's armies were reported operating on a 50-mile deep arc west of Kiev in the first heavy snowfall on the Ukrainian front. The battered German divisions still inside the Dnieper bend faced the choice of isolation of a precipitate retreat to the Rumanian border.

Two Dead In Collision

GRANGE HEAD HITS SUBSIDY PROPOSAL

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 10.—Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, called upon farmers today to stand fast not only against government food subsidies but against excessive farm prices as well, because both, he said, would lead the nation to economic suicide. Striking at food and tax policies of the Roosevelt administration and at wage demands of some groups of organized labor, the farm leader declared civilians must accept some cuts in living standards during the war or face disastrous inflation.

In a speech prepared for the opening session of the 77th annual convention of the grange, Goss said farmers must "accept and seek either rationing of price ceilings which will prevent farm prices from rising too high."

"We must be content," he said, "with margins very little above cost, for we, too, must accept cuts in our accustomed standards if inflation is to be licked."

Most farm prices are high enough, Goss said, adding, however, that "some adjustments among commodities are badly needed."

The administration's program for giving farmers a part of their return in government subsidies so as to be able to roll back consumer prices was characterized by Goss as a "way to economic chaos" because, he said, subsidies add at a mounting public debt at a time when most consumers have more money they can spend.

Lisbon Legion Seeking Toys For Orphans' Home

LISBON, Nov. 10.—Commander George C. Porter of John Welsh post, American Legion, has announced the appointment of Clarence Pannier and Mrs. Lenna Sotherland as chairman of the Legion and Auxiliary respective drives for collection and rejuvenation of toys which will be forwarded to the Xenia Home for Sailors' and Soldiers' Children at Christmas time.

Inability to obtain toys this year has spurred this canvass for discarded toys. Porter said, and anyone who has toys to contribute may leave them at the Boy Scout headquarters or contact either Mrs. Sotherland or Mr. Pannier.

Milk cows need from 100 to 300 pounds of water daily.

Plant Reconversion To Civilian Goods Manufacture Studied

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Donald M. Nelson told senate investigators today the War Production board is making constant surveys looking to reconversion of war plants to essential civilian production as fast as military requirements permit. Civilian priorities on such plants, he said, will be given to manufacturers of transportation equipment, farm machinery and tools, washing machines, refrigerators and other important products.

At the same time, the WPB chairman told a military sub-committee on war contract termination, it is "absolutely essential" that production of copper, lead, steel, zinc and other metals be "kept going at peak."

Contract terminations, he testified, are not a post-war problem alone since "more contracts have been cancelled to date than were cancelled after the last war."

In most cancellations the plants have been transferred to other military agencies, he said. Nelson asserted "it is vital that legislation be provided to protect smaller concerns in this reconversion process, especially sub-contractors."

"On the basic procedure for termination of contracts and reconversion of plants, congress should provide legislation that will give confidence to business and guidance to federal agencies. This is an immediate problem."

Nelson recommended that any legislation dealing with contract termination "should provide for dismissal wages to workers."

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

"Our enemies will discover," he said, "that it is one thing to land against Italians in Sicily and a very different thing against the Germans on the channel to France or Norway."

That's a true bill—if the "if" has to do with how much damage the German army has suffered in Russia. If Hitler's war-machine still has formidable power, then our greatest sacrifices are going to be on the beach-heads, wherever amphibious invasions are undertaken.

Once the beach-heads are established and we have our armies ashore, our losses will lessen greatly. The reader also knows from such bloody operations as Dieppe and Salerno what these landings can mean. We need only add to that knowledge the reminder that the coming invasions are on a vast scale and will challenge the defenses many times the strength of previous expeditions. The dangers will be immeasurably greater.

Premier Churchill's warning must be taken to heart. He probably expects us at the same time to note that the Red armies have Hitler's eastern forces in a precarious position. Should a general debacle hit the retreating Nazi line it would, to say the least, reduce the risks of the western invasions.
